The EnVision Partners Process

Well run businesses have excellent systems that give them current information on:

- Bank balances;
- Sales;
- Amount owing by debtors;
- Amount owing to creditors;
- Stock on hand;
- Work in progress (WIP);
- Previous results;
- Potential cashflow problems; and how they are tracking with respect to their budget.

The key ingredient in achieving this is the establishment of an effective bookkeeping and reporting system.

Business records are important. They help you (the business operator) to manage your business and produce the information that you are required by law to supply the ATO. By establishing proper records you will be able to obtain an accurate picture of your financial affairs, and this, in turn, will help your financial planning and decision making.

The proper recording of business information increases the likelihood of business success.

If you would like to know more about cloud accounting, or get a better understanding on how you can improve your bookkeeping, then you should consider an EnVision Partners Bookkeeping Analysis Consultation.
